Fundamentals of Complex Trauma and Dissociation

Saturday, March 14, 2015
9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Boston College

What is Complex PTSD? What is Dissociation? How are these diagnoses made? How is the treatment frame established? What does the overall treatment look like? How do I handle crises? Trauma survivors often present with complicated clinical pictures. Because of their often tenuous ability to connect with clinicians, it is frequently difficult to understand their symptoms. In this workshop the nature of dissociation and the ways to assess it will be addressed. It will include an overview of the treatment and ways to establish a secure yet flexible treatment frame. This workshop is intended for clinicians who are just beginning to understand the nature of complex PTSD and dissociation.
